Stanley told Zero that he was afraid of what might happen to them if they didn't go back to camp. Zero patted Stanley on the back and tried to reassure him, telling him that everything would be alright and that they wouldn't get in too much trouble. Stanley disagreed with what Zero had said. They continued to walk in the hot sun. When they reached the edge of the hill Stanley pointed to the tents and informed Zero that's where they needed to go. Zero replied by saying that it might be a better idea to walk all the way around to the other side of the camp as he knew a better way to sneak past the guards. Stanley told Zero he wasn't sure if that was the best idea, but Zero convinced Stanley that he knew what he was talking about.
