So today, I'd like you add some more detail that really brings your character to life.

Below is an example for our soldier from yesterday:

As the sun began to rise, Crisis Unit swooped down in their black and pink helicopter, creating a dust storm in their wake, landing on the open plains of Afghanistan. Joe had only recently joined the mighty ranks of this elite unit. At 23 he was one of the youngest of the unit and had fought hard to earn his place, though earn it he had. Joe had an athletic frame, with every part of his body hard like stone through years of training. Standing at well over 6 foot with chiselled, rugged features and light brown skin, he had always been seen as a 'pretty boy' but nothing could be further from the truth. Joe was smart with steely determination and laser focus to any task at hand. He had the capability of being aggressive if the situation required it but also able to stay ice cool under pressure. Since he was 12 years old, back on the farm in Texas he had always dreamt of joining the Crisis Unit. He was a true team player but could make his own decisions when necessary and his training in map-reading, knowledge of explosives and unarmed combat skills made him a formidable enemy.

Today, I'd like you to write a paragraph in your home learning book similar to the one above about the person sitting on the front step in the image below.

I have added questions that you might like to answer within your paragraph.

What is there name?

How old are they?

Describe their appearance?

How are they feeling?

Why?

Where are they?

Why are they there?

How are they linked to the other characters within the house of the image?
