

English

In your home learning book, I'd like you to write about something you enjoyed during the half term - a game, meal you had with your household; a bike ride, walk or dog walk; or even a zoom/facetime/house party call.

Write in the first person (I) and try and include some speech (remember the inverted commas go around everything which is said and have a piece of punctuation inside them).

For an additional challenge try to start every sentence with a fronted adverbial so you tell me about when something was done or happened (time), how something was done or happened (manner) or where something was done or happened (place).

Here's one from my family:

At 8pm on Saturday night, we all settle down on our brown, comfy sofa to watch Britain's Got Talent. Before we switch it on, we make sure we have an enormous bowl of sweet and salty popcorn, made in our shiny, silver microwave - hmm delicious!

Then the programme begins, we watch the acts excitedly, pretending we are the judges and we decide if the acts were any good or not. It's interesting that both we have different views within our family and, sometimes, we don't agree with the real judges either.

We never used to watch it quite so regularly, before lockdown and the coronavirus pandemic, but it has become a programme we can all enjoy and watch together. Popcorn helps!
